

WESTERLY

Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church, conducted the funeral service for Benjamin Courtland Bentley at his home on the Carpenter farm on the Shore Road, Saturday afternoon, there being a large number of relatives and friends in attendance. There were beautiful floral tributes, including a wreath of white carnations and candy tufts from Westerly Lodge of Elks, a wreath of white carnations on an easel, from the employees of the Bentley garage, and a square and compass of white carnations and Ward roses from Franklin Lodge Free and Accepted Masons. Burial was in the Bentley plot at River Bend. The bearers were Thomas E. Brown, Paraguth Smith, George Dolan, Cleveland Carpenter, Maurice W. Flynn and Frederick Congdon.

Dr. Frank I. Payne, the attending physician, made return to the town clerk that death was due to hemorrhage of the brain and a permit for burial was issued in regular form. There was a report that Mr. Bentley had been assaulted while at the Elm cottage at arragansett Pier and that death might have been caused by injuries received at that time, or been hurried by an injury to his head received in an automobile accident some months since. The matter has been considerably discussed since Mr. Bentley's death, but there has been no official investigation. Dr. Scanlon, the medical examiner, states that the death of Mr. Bentley had been reported to him for investigation.

It is learned that Mrs. Rogers and Smith, of Providence, were called into the case as specialists. Dr. Smith declared there was no possibility of a localizing symptoms and no definite paralysis on either side. He said Mr. Bentley received a head injury some time ago and said he diagnosed the case as sleeping sickness or a similar condition induced by an injury.

Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell's automobile, operated by her chauffeur, James Di Dasie, struck Mary Londero, age 12, while passing High Street on Saturday afternoon, and received cuts in her forehead and chin. The child was attended by Dr. Scanlon. With-nesses declare that the chauffeur is not at fault as the Londero girl ran from the sidewalk directly in front of the automobile.

James Hay, 50, Greenwich florist, known in Westerly and all over this section, died suddenly Saturday of heart disease. He was born in Scotland and when quite young located in Providence, at one time he was undergardener for Mrs. Jack Gardner of Boston, whose gardens attracted world wide attention. He was subsequently head gardener for the Goddard estate at Potowomut. He afterwards engaged in the florist business. He leaves his widow, a son and three daughters.

With concessions agreeable to the town council in regard to the electric light rates, the case does not seem real justification for that special town meeting called for Tuesday evening of this week. There has been considerable investigation by an expert in behalf of the town since increased rates were imposed, and it was proposed to carry the matter through the courts, if necessary, to secure the rates, as suggested by the expert. To do this it was considered essential to employ a Boston lawyer who specializes in that class of proceeding, to cooperate with the expert, a professor at Harvard, the Massachusetts School of Technology. The special meeting is called to make appropriation for carrying on the contest. In the meantime the electric company has changed the rate from eleven cents to nine cents per kilowatt hour. This proposition looked good to the town council and was accepted. However, the call has been issued and the meeting will be held.

The regular meeting of the town council will be held today (Monday) and it is probable that some recommendation will be framed for presentation to the special town meeting.

Warren Barber, who was severely scalded by the twisting of a steam pipe, at the plant of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, Uncausville, and taken to Backus hospital, Norwich, is the son of Winthrop Barber, of Westerly, December 24, 1917, his brother, Clyde Barber, who was operating an automobile down the hill leading into Hope Valley, was killed, as was also Ephraim Williams of New York and Stonington. The car skidded on the icy hill, struck a bank on the roadside, overturned and plumed Mr. Barber and Mr. Williams to the ground. Mr. Barber was in the automobile business and was taking Mr. Williams to Boston to get his (Williams) car which had been rebuilt in that city.

She was a member of the Poquonnoce Baptist church, and since the family came to the Rose farm in Lisbon, six months ago they have been regular attendants at the Jewett City Baptist church. Leghorns are leading in STORRS EGG LAYING.

The hens in the laying contest at Storrs have yielded a little ground, but they are retiring in splendid order. Not only this, but they seem to have sufficient reserve so that it now looks as if the final outcome of the competition would be better than was first predicted. The total number of eggs for the 30th week was 4,502, or a yield of over 64 per cent. This is 130 eggs better than for the corresponding week last year and 15 per cent. of the eggs. The pullets entered by Rapp's Leghorn Farm, Atlantic Highlands, N. J., were a close second for the week with a production of 60 eggs. A Connecticut hen entered by Mrs. E. J. Thompson of New Haven was third with a record of 59 eggs. Beck Egg Farm, Woodcliff Lake, N. J., supplied the birds for fourth place with 58 eggs for the week. B. S. Ellis' White Leghorns

The outlying districts of this town may not seem to the thoughtful person to be the main thoroughfare from one state to the other. But such is the case. This refers, however, to overland travelers. Merton Bartlett, who occupies the Phillips farm in the south part of the town, is becoming so accustomed to the Versatile (all-terrain) car, that when he hears a sound of an approaching vehicle, he instinctively gazes skyward. Four a week is a small number to pass over the air-route. Now, Mr. Bartlett is a most courteous man, and he always waves a salute to the pilots of the over-air machines, and generally receives as courteous a reply. Last week one plane flew so low that it could distinguish the eyes of the two occupants and waved vigorously while shouting his greetings. A man replied as courteously, but the other proceeded to saucily riddle his fingers at the end of his nose? Mr. Bartlett thinks very strongly of fencing in the air-space over the farm, and enlisting the services of Officer John L. ...

Miss Mary Hoppman was given a kitchen shower Saturday in honor of her approaching marriage. She has been bookkeeper at the Versatile (all-terrain) car for two years, and entertained several of her friends. As a surprise to her they arranged to make the affair a kitchen shower, which took the form of a May party. The house was decorated in pink and white, and a chicken dinner was served the party. Music on the Victrola and a barn dance entertained them. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, Misses Annie Reynolds, Mildred Carr, Ruth Kuppy, Agnes Kloss, Jennie and Mary Sullivan, May Rushnell and Emily Robish, and Mrs. Daniel Connolly and children. Miss Hoppman and Daniel W. Goss of Norwich are to be married June ninth.

The quartette that sang so acceptably was Miss Ethel Howard, Mrs. E. P. Ayer, Howard J. Wilbur Lanphear and Burton W. Welch. The address given by Rev. E. P. With the advent of summer weather all poultry flocks are likely to fall off a little in their production and unfortunately this cannot be entirely obviated. There are, however, helpful hints, some of which are so simple that when made the uninitiated consider them of only small importance. For example, it is just as necessary that hens have clean fresh water as to have feed, and yet this part of the ration is not infrequently overlooked or neglected. The cause is it does not cost as much as a bag of grain. Add to this a bountiful supply of tender tempting green food, and then make a careful periodical examination for lice and mites and exterminate them, and in most cases the poultryman will be rewarded with more eggs.

where George, grandfather of Tyler, was born. This property was never out of the Cruttenden family. The settler, Abraham Cruttenden, came to Guilford with the Henry Whitfield company in 1639. George Cruttenden lived at one time in East Haddam, but returned to Guilford and married, second, Beulah, daughter of Capt. Eli Kimberly, keeper of Faulkner's Island lighthouse. He was the father of 13 children. He lived in the Cunningham house over Jones' bridge, since burned, and later in the house of Capt. Charles Griswold in Fair street. He removed from Guilford nearly 50 years ago. His son, first cousin of Miss Anna Cruttenden, was father of Tyler Cruttenden, who is thus returning to the native town of his grandfather. George Cruttenden's first wife was Elizabeth Tyler, for whom the grandson is named.

The Fowler mansion built about 1877 by Major Miner Fowler, son of Noah Fowler, who was the patriarch of Moose Hill, owning property for a mile on both sides of the highway and setting his four sons on four hands, some farms out from the father's estate. The Miner Fowler property was never out of the family name until two years ago, when Wallace, Calaud Fowler died, and his daughter, Mrs. Chester A. Kingman, of New York, sold it. A century ago the homestead was a center of hospitality, the passing stage coach stopping frequently to set down guests, for Miner Fowler, Jr., had married the Widow Charley Ives Linsley of Waterbury, young, beautiful, accomplished and with much public prestige. But for 30 years past the house has been practically closed and deserted. That it is again to be the scene of happy home life of an old Guilford family is a matter of congratulation to the town.

Field Marshal Von der Goltz will be permitted to retain command provided he receives orders from Germany for the establishment of a Lettish coalition government. The note is said to decree that arms must be restored to Lettish troops whose mobilization must be unhampered while complete freedom must be assured the new Lettish government. Fifteen days from June 1 are granted for acceptance of the terms.

CLERGYMAN CONVICTED OF CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS

Seoul, Korea, June 1.—(By The A. P.) The trial of the Reverend Eugene Bell, the Presbyterian missionary of Shelbyville, Ky., charged with criminal carelessness in accidentally causing the death of his wife and another missionary in an automobile accident, last night resulted in his conviction. The punishment imposed was a fine of fifty yen. An express train crashed into the automobile which the Rev. Mr. Bell was driving near Seoul, and the prosecutor maintained that the missionary was criminally negligent in not hearing the whistle.

GRAVES OF AMERICANS IN SIBERIA DECORATED

Vladivostok, May 30.—(By The A. P.) The graves of Americans buried in Siberian soil were decorated today at Memorial Day exercises in which representatives of the allied nations participated. High tribute to the memory of the soldiers and sailors buried here was paid by speakers who pointed out that, although the duty of the Siberian expedition is non-combatant participation in the plan to help Russia, the supreme sacrifice of Americans who have lost their lives in Siberia will ever be remembered by the people at home.
